DETAILED ACTION

Request for Continued Examination

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114 including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17 (e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on September 11, 2003 has been entered.

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election of Group I, comprising claims 1-6, in Paper No. 8 is acknowledged. Because applicant did not distinctly and specifically point out the supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election has been treated as an election without traverse (MPEP § 818.03(a)).

Claims 7-10 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in Paper No. 8.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. §103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Lilja et al. (US 5547322) in view of Glynn (US 3179969).

Art Unit: 3677

Lilja et al. (figure 1) teaches holding device with at least one operating mount, tow which fastening means that are stressed upon traction can be fixed, as well as with a securing unit for mounting the holding device in a stationary mount, whereby the securing unit has two stopping catches 9 distanced from one another, the stopping catches are positioned on elastically movable support units 11, 13 which are connected with one another by means of a transverse section 12 which is dimensionally stable in the mounted condition in that it doesn't change dynamically when mounted, the transverse section having two opposed end regions which are space apart, the elastically movable support units emanating from respective ones of the two opposed end regions of the transverse section, and the stopping catches being spaced apart a distance substantially less than the distance separating the opposed end regions of the transverse section, through which any pulling force that may be exerted upon the transverse section causes the constricted regions disposed between the stopping catches to move outwardly against the edge sections in the same manner as applicant's device. The difference is that the actual edge sections are not shown, though Lilja et al. clearly indicate that the fastener is secured to a hole in a wall or post and is to secure a net, wire or cable. It would have been obvious to have the hole in the post in view of Glynn (figures 1-3) suggesting securing a fastener utilized in traction within a hole so as to have the device snap fastened in the hole. As to claim 5, to make the transverse section thicker than the support units would have been obvious in view of Glynn in which the transverse section 5 defining the lug is of greater thickness than the resilient securing sections 18 so as to better secure the lug. In regard to claim 6, Glynn suggests modifying the fastener of Lilja et al. so that there is a rotational asymmetry so that the device won't twist in the opening.
